, age 15, stepped out on her front step about 7:40 p.m. to look for a friend coming to pick her up. The night was dark, overcast, calm and cold. Snow covered the ground. Light on the snow attracted her attention and in glancing around glimpsed a large light in the sky partially obscured by the eave of the roof. She stepped out into the yard and could see a large brightly lighted hovering object not far above the end of her home. It was so bright there was no color apparent (presumed therefore to be white light). She says that "it was as big as a car" and also thought a boy her age could have hit it with a rock. Shape was almost circular. As she stood looking, it tipped and rotated partly so she was able to see it had a domed top. She could make out indistinct outlines of two figures inside. She felt they were looking directly at her and she became very frightened. She could not (or did not) see any details of their appearance because of the glare. She ran into the house and called for her younger sister to come see. The sister was barefoot so Marilyn ran back to the yard in time to see it begin to rotate clockwise (as seen from below). It continued rotating in its tipped condition as it moved away to the north and therefore appeared to be wobbling. As it dimmed in the distance, its color became an obvious orange. This part of the flight was witnessed by her younger brothers and sisters through the back windows of the house. Her parents were not home.

COMMENT: I am acquainted with the parents of this young lady. They know her to be a truthful girl not given to imaginings or exaggerated stories. She was still upset when her parents returned home about 11:30 p.m. They believe her.

The accompanying illustrations have been checked for accuracy with Marilyn.

Sincerely yours,

JAN 22 1968
