Dear [redacted],

I hope Steve is holding up well. As he gets into the editing phase, he should at least be home more, though pretty well absorbed in the project.

I ran into a New potential witness yesterday. While showing my pictures of what appears to be a reservoir on Mars to one flight attendant who makes props for Star Trek, the other male flight attendant perked up his ears. He was on board one our United flight near Dallas - Fort Worth several months ago when they spotted a "Triangular" formation of lights connected by faint lines. He was visiting the Cockpit when this happened, and heard a Delta Airlines flight ask his flight if they saw what Delta was seeing. Our United Captain reluctantly confirmed the sighting. If this is the same one that was on Art Bell last year, the Delta Crew and the controllers reported it, and went on the radio to talk about it.

When I pulled Steve's card out to get an e-mail address for him, he saw the CSETI logo and said "That's IT"! He said it was smaller circles and fainter lines between, but basically what he saw was a craft or crafts in our logo shape. He said they watched it for awhile, and then it shot off at incredible speed.

His name is [redacted] and he is based in Los Angeles. He has done some covert work in the past, primarily translating, and does not have a lot of respect for the covert ops type people. I gave him this e-mail address since I did not have the others on me. He said he would get in touch. Being a Flight Attendant, he can travel to IAD on a day off and talk to you if you wish. Seemed like an intelligent, honest guy.

P.S. May the Force be with us.
