

unneeded?

3

Subj: [Fwd: UFOS]
Date: 06/19/2000 11:48:14 AM Eastern Daylight Time
From: [REDACTED]
To: [REDACTED]

this was originally sent to space.com.
now i have sent it to you!!!

sincerely

[REDACTED]

@ [REDACTED]

X-Mozilla-Status2: 00000000
Message-ID: <39406FCC.[REDACTED]>
Date: Thu, 08 Jun 2000 21:17:16 -0700
From: [REDACTED]m
X-Mailer: Mozilla 4.7 [en] (Win98; I) X-Accept-Language: en
MIME-Version: 1.0
To: [REDACTED]m
Subject: UFOS
Content-Type: text/plain; charset=us-ascii Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

i have had many friends who had experiences with ufos.
one friend of mine grew up on several different air force bases, and he said the ufos would hover around the electrical substations or generators or whatever they are called (to perhaps 'recharge their batteries' or something) and every time he would call the tower to report the sightings, they would come up with some lame explanation. another friend of mine who lives in phoenix, arizona said that one time he was outside with a friend and a ufo flew over their heads at a high rate of speed, only to be chased a moment later by an f-16. he was a soundman on a tour of america i did years back, but he said that he had also worked for some big defense contractor down in arizona (supposedly working on nuclear reactor cores!), and this daytime ufo fly-by happened in the vicinity of the defense contractor facility. his mother explained in detail the 1997 nighttime mothership ufo, and how talk radio listened to literally thousands of callers for weeks during the news blackout of the event.
these are just a few of many stories that i have heard.
did you know that the nsa (national security agency) was initially formed as a result of the roswell incident and the government's paranoia surrounding the ufo phenomenon?
see: the secret government @ [REDACTED]M

sincerely, [REDACTED]

@ ht [REDACTED]

Headers