

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
January 19, 2002

Dr. Steve Greer
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Gentlemen:

Re: Possible Roswell artifact(s).

I recently joined up with Classmates.com, and touched base with a old friend of mine from high school. She sent me the enclosed email which I think you will find very interesting. It seems that some of the material from the Roswell crashes survived and got into various government operative hands. Perhaps you already are aware of this.

In any event, I am forwarding this to you, as I know that you will treat this with the utmost confidentiality. I certainly want to respect and protect my friend's privacy. If you want to contact her, please do it though me for now. I am arranging for photos of the items and may go to visit her to view the items personally.

I regard this as a significant breakthrough and one which might have far reaching implications.

Please let me know what you think of this.

Regards,
[REDACTED]

File
Mark ET Evidence

Subject: World of the Unknown

Date: Mon, 14 Jan 2002 13:13:43 -0500

Dear [REDACTED],

Amazed to hear you are into the metaphysical. So am I.

For me, my main focus is the paranormal and I too have had some very interesting experiences, especially when my mom died back in 1971. My mom had, and my daughter and I have some psychic abilities - with my daughter being the most "tuned-in."

I am also very interested in outer space (my college majors were chemistry and astronomy) and all the possibilities that exist there some of which you seem to have had some experience with. Tell me exactly what is the CE2 incident you mention in Vietnam?

Before we moved to White Plains in the late 40's, we had lived in Oak Ridge, TN where my Dad worked on the Manhattan Project and had gov. clearance for some pretty spooky projects. In the 50's he was invited to go to "Hangar 51" and I will never forget his look or his words when he returned. He had definitely not been a "believer" but upon return, he told my mom and I that although he could not relate any details of what he had seen there, that if he hadn't seen it with his own eyes he would never have believed it. While on his trip, he was presented with 2 silver-colored ash trays or candy dishes made of a very special metal which he only told us was related to what he had seen. When Dad passed away in 1988, I found those two cherished possessions of his and gave one to my oldest son and retained one. As a girl, I remember trying everything possible to destroy, dent, scratch or in some way mark the metal which is unbelievably lite-weight, and never was able to. Makes you wonder!!!

To me it is all extremely fascinating.....

Fondly,