ET Object?

Hi,
Just FYI unless [REDACTED] releases it.
Thought you should know...

XOXORR

This is a heads-up confidential notification that with the help of the History Channel, who provided the equipment (different types of magnetometers and ground penetrating radar) for measuring and testing my hypothesis, that we have confirmed the existence of an alien probe ten feet below the surface, embedded in Ordovician marine rocks after it apparently landed on an ancient island archipelago 430 million years ago. With erosion, it is nearly exposed, and has been reactivated. It is sending signals out into space. The TV shoot will hopefully appear (unless blocked by the government) in February 2008. The Producer says this is a smoking gun.

Please keep this information confidential for now, since the History Channel wants to have all TV rights to this discovery. Because a cemetery exists over 1/3rd of the triangular-shaped probe, it will be difficult for the military or government to hide it. It is way too big to be moved by any known human transport methods (~565 feet on a side and over 17 feet thick).

Bill Birnes (Editor of UFO Magazine) was there with me during this discovery, and will appear on the show. A large healthy tree growing next to one of the magnetic beam devices has been magnetized to more than 17 times background magnetic readings. Black triangular craft frequent the location as if drawn to its beacon. That's how I found it back in 1992-1993.

I have updated my powerpoint on this subject, with images and diagrams of the new evidence.

If you know of anyone who might want to help me excavate this UBO (Unidentified Buried Object), let me know.
Yours truly,
