Steve, this is from a physicist in France.
Do you want to reply or should I?

Thanks,

Dear Dr Greer,

I found your web site very interesting but you seem to ignore that other countries like France have had ultra-secret projects in place for 40 years now whose purpose is to UFO's and to discover their propulsion technology but which have succeeded in actually developing working prototypes for a secret branch of the French Airforce base near the Jouvan military base in south-west France. Ever since Mr [REDACTED] demonstrated the principles of what is now known as the Biefeld-Brown effect in France before he died, the French military establishment cut the funds on all civil research associated with magnetohydrodynamics and gravito-electric coupling in which the country was a leader in the world. [REDACTED] who worked in the field in the late 60's and early 70's recalled that the French scientific establishment, the CRNS decided to channel funds into other, more conventional areas of research at the time. What [REDACTED] did not realise is that research into these classified areas continued with amazing technological breakthroughs resulting in several astonishing prototypes. It is not an accident for example that for 40 years there has been UFO sightings in the Var region and in fact, one of the most detailed UFO reports in this country recounts the witnessing of an early prototype surveillance and spy craft which employed the Biefeld-Brown effect. Details can be found on the net. Colini - Trans-en-provence case, 1981. The witness recounts that the flying object landed for a few seconds on the grass and that the 2 concentric circles left marks on the grass which had diameters which were in metres and centimetres and not in feet or inches or some other system of measurement had the object been of extra-terrestrial origin. Today French spy craft are extremely sophisticated which can not only deflect radar waves but can also become invisible to the naked eye using very powerful High Tc superconducting magnets and lasers to accelerate the electrons of the air at 1/5 the velocity of light along the hull of the craft thereby eliminating air friction which enables velocities up to 12,000 km/h. For a view of the latest prototypes, please enter (var-matin/ovni) in Yahoo search in France. There is no doubt that if this technology ever fell in the wrong hands it could spell disaster. Imagine for example, a terrorist with a nuclear bomb on board such a craft....very scary indeed, impossible to detect except with infra-red cameras and invisible to radar. This could partially explain the secrecy surrounding such programs.

Keep up the good work,
