[REDACTED]

Howdy, from one rancher to another. My fields are drying out nicely. We could have used more snow this year, but trust in the rains to continue as last.

I'm writing once more, really, about this UFO thing. I've had a number of encounters with an odious little man named [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] Most recently he has written in his self-published "Skeptics UFO Newsletter", his rebuttal to the piece which I wrote. He has distorted it quite badly, as is usual for disinformation specialists like him. (I have evidence that he was/is a CIA "asset".) If not, he's difficult to explain in conventional social terms. His methods are those of [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]; assassinate the character of those with whom you disagree.

I have tried to ignore [REDACTED] in spite of his attacks, even when he resorted to writing to my boss at the University of Maine in an attempt to have me fired because I refused to turn over to him a report on the I.O. written by Kingston George. He is vicious and without scruple in his methods.

In his newsletter item, [REDACTED] quotes from an article written for him by K [REDACTED] claims the whole thing was nothing more than the image of "a small cloud of debris" which resulted from the release of two radar decoys. He says the date of the launch was September 22, 1964 and that it was a predawn one. That doesn't jibe with my records at all.

[REDACTED] further quotes from a letter which I sent to you. It says, "After publication of Bob Jacobs' wild Big Sur UFO tale in the National Enquirer he wrote to his former boss, [REDACTED]

██████████, on Jan. 14, 1985 to explain what had prompted him to write the article. ██████████ said he first tried, unsuccessfully, to sell the article to Omni magazine. (sic) 'As a poor teacher in an impoverished state [Wisconsin], I then sold it to The Enquirer to pay a few bills.' Jacobs reportedly received $500 for his article. At last report, Jacobs had left the University of Maine for the University of Cleveland (Ohio.)' (sic)."

I remember this out of context quote from a letter, among others to you, which I wrote. I also have four notes from you, one written to me on 1-30-85, one written to Lee Graham on 1-30-1983, one to Peter Bons written on March 8, 1983 and one written to Robert Brown on 11-28-91, confirming my "story" in every respect except the exact date.

I have to know if you gave my letter to ██████████, since I am considering filing a libel suit against him. I don't give a hoot if he believes my story or not. What I reported was the truth as I knew it, however, and I cannot tolerate this assassination of my character by him. There is just no need for him to call me a liar, a charlatan, to say that I "concocted a cock and bull story" and so forth. I did nothing of the sort.

I think that ██████████ and I are talking about two separate events, frankly. What you've confirmed in the past seems to indicate that as well. If you know differently now, please tell me. I respect you very much, Sonny, and have been open and honest with you about this thing since the beginning. In any event, if you know what of my private correspondence to you ██████████ may have gotten, I'd appreciate knowing about it so I don't get blindsided again.

All best wishes to you, the family and the crops as usual!

Sincerely,

██████████
