Dear friend: Alter the conversation we had in Barcelona, I have visited different countries looking for some anthropologist or scientific interested in the specimen I have, but I was not able to find anybody interested because they are afraid to say something against the dogmas of the official science.

During the Congress of Lanzarote in the Canary Islands I could see how several anthropologists of different nations were interested but the Direction of the Congress made every possible effort to hinder the investigation of the little being. They only allowed the official assert that "it was the most little and beautiful mummy ever known".

Of course I am interested in the study of the little being, but in your letter you don't say anything about the place of the analysis, the date and the conditions. Furthermore I would like to know what kind of analysis would be done because the most important thing is to know its mitochondrial DNA.

In the study made by the University of Granada they only said that the creature was feminine, but I think that this of little importance and more so when I have a strong suspicion that they kept for themselves other things they discovered. The being was submitted to a TAC but they didn't give me the results.

As for the gratifications, there is nothing established and being ours a "Non Profit" organization; I suppose that this circumstance will not be a problem.

Your visit to us was very agreeable but we rested a little disappointed because after your interest and inspection of the creature you didn't say anything for two years

I send from Barcelona to you, Dr. Greer and all your group the most warm salute.
