Don't feel bad about missing this.
There are so many emails flying that I have missed stuff too. YIKES !
I have asked him about DC so we'll see what I hear back.

Yes, I was a military police officer in 2010 when my Alabama National Guard military police unit the 152nd Military Police Company was sent to Eglin Air Force Base located in Fort Walton, Florida. My unit basically had 2 missions when we were sent there. First, it was for marijuana eradication in and around the base because Eglin is a huge base. Secondly, we were to work jointly with the Air Force Security Forces patrolling the garrison because our unit was getting ready to deploy overseas and our command wanted us to brush up on our skills before we deployed. Our first day there when we were briefed by the head of the Air Force Security Forces during guard mount we were told that if we were assigned to the marine patrol for whatever days we worked those areas in the waters surrounding the base that occasionally we would have to retrieve "space junk". Most of the guys, including myself, kind of laughed it off and didn't give it much more thought. I was told by other Air Force Security Forces that I patrolled with they had pulled some amazing "space junk" out of the water surrounding Eglin. The fact that it happens enough that we were even told about it was incredible to me because why would anything from space be falling in and around a military base in Florida? One day, I was patrolling with my Air Force counterpart to an area on Eglin called Site C6. You can actually Google Site C6 to learn about some of its capabilities but you have to have a secret security clearance to visit the site itself. All military police have to have a secret security clearance. It's located about 15 miles deep inside the base. When I walked into the SCIF (Sensitive Compartmented Information Facility) there was a sentence written in gold letters I'll never forget, it read, "We monitor all space activity terrestrial and extraterrestrial from planet earth". It was then I learned that we are not alone and military even monitors their activities. I could not take one more step inside the facility because I was so shocked at what I had just read literally on the wall. The radar at Site C6 is one of the most powerful radars on the Earth and can detect objects in space the size of a basketball as far out as 20,000 miles. The facility has now been turned over to the U.S. Space Force. At night, on two occasions I can remember, when my unit was back at camp located just a mile away from the U.S. Army Ranger Camp located on Eglin, our cadre made us all go inside because they did not want us to see what was flying around in the sky above the base. On numerous occasions I observed unmarked jet aircraft taking off from the base and when I asked the security forces officer I was with about the unmarked planes, he said all the security forces referred to them as "secret squirrel” planes. I served active duty in the Marine Corps from 1994-1998 and Army from 2005 to 2006 on active duty orders serving overseas for Operation Enduring Freedom. I was in the Alabama National Guard from 2003-2006 and again from 2009-2012. I am also a disabled veteran. My two weeks I spent on Eglin Air Force Base was the most enlightening time in my military career and I still can’t wrap my head around what I experienced on that base and it haunts me to this day. It has caused a lot of grief and unanswered questions for me for many years now. If you want to contact me, you can call me at: [REDACTED] or reply to this email. I look forward to hearing from you!

Sincerely,

[REDACTED]

Hello Mr. [REDACTED]

I'm afraid we did not see that email.

Would you please resend it?

Were you in the military at the time? In what capacity?

Thanks very much.

Sincerely

[REDACTED]
