Steve:

Yesterday Ralph and I did a 2 hour interview with [REDACTED]. We focused mainly on her relationship with Von Braun - what exactly he said to her and what her understanding was back then of the ET issue in relation to the BMD program. Von Braun's statements were general expressions of concern, and [REDACTED] never had any "specific" knowledge of a planned use to target ET's in space. Based on that information, [REDACTED] Will and I are concerned that this part of the June 12 DNP announcement is overstated:

"This international team working intensely on the disclosure process has been recently joined by one of the most senior aerospace executives in American history - a person who has specific knowledge since the 1970s of the planned use of Ballistic Missile Defense (the Star Wars program) to target extraterrestrial objects in space - even though there is no evidence of any credible threat from these craft."

I propose the following rewrite:

This international team working intensely on the disclosure process has been recently joined by a former senior aerospace executive - a person who has been aware since the 1970s that the Ballistic Missile Defense Program would be used to target extraterrestrial objects in space - even though there is no evidence of any credible threat from these craft.

Does this change have your approval?

Feedback from [REDACTED]s welcome ([REDACTED]s fine with this as is) -

Btw, there was continuous phone interference throughout the interview. Also [REDACTED] discovered, while on the line with us, that some of her files had been broken into and papers disturbed in her work space by an intruder (it's all on tape). She's sending documents on Von Braun to begin a search for corroboration of what he said.
