Subject: Another Prominent UFO Statement

>"The federal government should disclose
>whatever it knows about aliens or unidentified flying >objects to the public. . . That's called national security.
>People in government think you can't handle it and you >need to be protected from it." Minnesota Governor Jesse >Ventura August 10, 2001
>A couple weeks back I asked a person attached to the >Disclosure Project why someone didn't just go up >to the President and ask him what was going on. I >was told that on occasion the President has been >close enough to ask a question.
>What I was told in short is that there was a way of >doing things in Washington, and the method I had >proposed was not the proper way of getting Disclosure.
>There was a protocol for doing things at the White >House. This went not only for Disclosure Project people, >but for White House correspondents who are around the >President a great deal. (Thus the reason for no question >to the President on UFOs since December 1954)
>Another reason for this question is that I as a lowly Canadian >researcher was able to question Vice-president Dick Cheney on a

>Washington D.C. radio show. In his answer to my question, >Cheney admitted that if briefed on UFOs "it probably would >have been classified." For having asked one simple question >on a radio show, I seemed to have picked up a lot of information.
>Charles Huffer, an Arkansas researcher took a similar approach to >me and was able to question both George Bush Sr. as he was >campaigning for President in 1988, and his son George W. Bush >during his Presidential Campaign in 2000. On both occasions >the Bush campaigners said that they would look into the UFO >situation. Bush Sr. admitted to Huffer that he knew some of >what was going on. Bush Jr. told Huffer that it (UFOs) would be the >first thing that Dick Cheney would do after they moved into the >White House.
>The idea of going to the Chief Executive office seems to have >great payoffs. Now another question has been asked, and another >dramatic reply has been obtained. The exchange took place Friday >afternoon in Minneapolis with former Navy Seal and now Governor >of Minnesota Jesse Ventura. The question was asked at his weekly >radio show held at the Minnesota Zoo in Apple Valley. The Associated >Press story of the account reads.

>APPLE VALLEY, Minn. ?? UFOs? Why not?
>"You look at the vast array of stars up there and we're >to believe we're the only life?" Gov. Jesse Ventura said >Friday. "I don't think so. ... There's got to be >somebody else out there."
>
>The comments came in reaction to a question from an >audience member during Ventura's live weekly radio >show, broadcast from the Minnesota Zoo.
>Ventura said the federal government should disclose
>whatever it knows about aliens or unidentified flying >objects to the public.
>"That's called national security," he said. "People in >government think you can't handle it and you need to >be protected from it."
>"Personally, I've never seen a UFO. I can't say that I >have," Ventura said. "But do they exist? Who knows?"

>The person who asked the question was a producer for >Sean David Morton. Morton is known for his psychic >predictions and his UFO efforts which include discovering >the lookout over Area 51 where onlookers flocked to >see what was going on at the base.

>
>Gabriel Palimon (sp?) Was the man who asked the question.
>Gabriel lives in L.A. He was just in Minneaoplis visiting a friend.
>The friend suggested that they go down to the zoo and see >Governor Ventura's radio show called "Lunch with Jesse Ventura."
>When the host asked who wants to ask a question, Gabriel stood >up and asked a series of questions. "I couldn't wait to ask him this >question," Gabriel stated. "He was serious, and he was not at all >tongue-in-check. He was as honest as he could possibly be about it.
>There was no sarcasm. Only towards the end when he had basically >said everything that he said, when I was walking away he said,
>'There could be aliens in this audience.' Because there was a >bunch of people sitting outside watching him. He said, 'There could >be one there, there could be one over there,' and he said, 'Who >knows - your Governor could be an alien.'"
>Gabriel stated that he also tried to get into the story told by Colonel >Philip Corso. Gabriel asked the former Navy Seal if he had know >Colonel Corso. Ventura cut him off asking "Why are you asking this?"
>Gabriel replied, "There seems to be a total political and media >blackout on this subject." It was at this point Ventura said "Well >you know what that is. That's national security. They don't want >you to know, because they don't think you can handle it."
>Gabriel then asked, "Do you think the government should give >the public full disclosure on the subject, and he said, and I'm >paraphrasing like absolutely, definitely, something very much >affirming that, and then went on to talk about the crowd and himself >and how he might be an alien."
>
>Gabriel told his story on the Art Bell show August 10.
>
>Get out and ask the leaders some questions!
