Dear Dr. Steven Greer and the Disclosure Team,

I hope this email finds you well. I write to you from the quiet reaches of [REDACTED] Sweden where I serve as a Logistic Officer at [REDACTED]. I've heard of your work from colleagues; often the subject of our coffee break musings and jests. However, an incident has occurred that has changed the perspective of your 'conspiracy theories' into something that feels disturbingly real.

On the night between the 11-12th of July this year (2023), our space center was abruptly put on high alert due to an unexpected event. I wasn't present at the center at the time, but was made aware of the situation through our official work communication channel in Microsoft Teams. The conversations revolved around a reported crash in a [REDACTED] near Övre Soppero, with an emphasis that the object did not originate from Earth – it wasn't ours or the Russians'.

Intrigued and somewhat alarmed, I took screenshots of these group chat messages and went back to sleep. The following day was unusual; I received an unexpected call informing me that I was free due to some internal reorganization. I did not probe further about the crash and carried on with my routine – breakfast, and then a visit to the gym.

At the gym, curiosity got the better of me. I decided to delve further into the crash incident and opened the Teams app to revisit the conversation. Much to my surprise, I couldn't find the group chat anymore. The screenshots I had taken the previous night had mysteriously disappeared from my photo gallery. All that remained was a single cryptic notification with the message "...", followed by the closure of the chat.

I am not one to easily believe in supernatural or otherworldly phenomena. However, the peculiarity of the situation, the secrecy surrounding the event, and the subsequent deletion of all related conversations have led me to believe that something extraordinary happened that night.

I am reaching out to you because I trust in your expertise and believe you might be able to shed light on this incident. I feel an undeniable duty towards public disclosure if we are indeed dealing with an unknown object from space. I would greatly appreciate your guidance and assistance in this matter, and I am ready to cooperate fully in your investigation.

Looking forward to your response.

Best Regards,

Logistic Officer,

Sweden
