Hi again [REDACTED] I opened the second mail and looked over the URLs, just got your second and looked at that URL as well. Let's plumb the MJ-12 docs...

Cliff told Stanton how to "view" a doc. He told Stanton exactly what to look for with respect to an authentic doc. Remember, Cliff was a clerk-typist and viewed these type of docs for 22 years. There are marks and stamps that docs require to be legit. Outside those marks, on what looks to be, and may in fact be a gov doc, no rule of law will apply for treason. That in a nut shell, is the long and the short of it. Read that again the treason part). While being highly duplicitous, it is no more surprising than Clinton's, "I did not have sexual relations with that woman."

With respect to the last URL you sent me, take a look at the date the docs surfaced, 1978. The deception program was started in 1977.

I had talked with Cliff with respect to what an authentic doc looked like. This, after I asked him about MJ-12. He started to tell me what real docs required. He stopped short of telling me they were fake at that time. However, Cliff has stated as of late, that he is about to, "turn it up a notch," with respect to higher levels of disclosure.

He has been angry as of late. Angry at the way the government has lead researchers around by the nose. Angry that the researchers are in-fighting over things that are simply a red-herring. He wants to expose what is an Officially Sanctioned Deception Program.

As far as the paper, Cliff says the government has reams of old stock. It is used for such projects. Moreover, they maintain old machines to produce these docs. Remember, with the money and minds that, that money can buy, it would be child's-play to produce legit looking docs. So much so, that they could fool an excellent researcher such as Stan Friedman.

In fact, it is because Stanton is so dogged that they knew he would find the Hello [REDACTED] Excellent question indeed.

One sure way to get disinformation generally accepted is to marble partial truths throughout such material. There is no doubt that the Twinining memo was legit as were/are other pieces of information contained within the MJ-12 material. Even Stanton Friedman acknowledged that some of the documents were bogus. With that acknowledgment in mind, the logical extension of query should rightly have been: "Why?" From my perspective, this is one of the most compelling questions. One possible explanation to such a question might be: The cat will be out of the bag soon, therefore it is in the interest of the powers that be to acclimatize the general population with the possibility that the government knows about this, and has known about this, for a long time. Moreover, much of the population is content, and even takes comfort in the fact, that "their government has a handle on things." I don't think I need to expound upon the benefits for the government with respect to such a scenario.

One other question I feel compelled to ask is this: Why, if this area of knowledge is so taboo, did/does the government seemingly corroborate, public speculation through/with these documents? The disinformation aspect of any clandestine operation -- to my mind -- would be to point everywhere, but to the truth. Again, I can only conclude that the agenda is, acclimatization.

The reason I conclude acclimatization is as follows:

3) They have confirmed that they (the benevolent group) would indeed intercede on our behalf should such a group openly try to do us harm. However, they further stated, they would not stay around long enough to take a bow.

4) (Although this is a "unconfirmed point," I feel it worth mentioning.) Rumor has it, that sometime in the relatively recent past, that a firefight broke out between aliens and DoD forces within a DoD facility. In the Mexico area, I think.

5) This is a hard fact: Cliff confirmed seeing material from a DoD report of a significant exchange between alien ships and Defense forces in the Brazil area. They (DoD forces) suffered 80% losses. It is hard to keep the lid on such things, so...

area, I think.

5) This is a hard fact: Cliff confirmed seeing material from a DoD report of a significant exchange between alien ships and Defense forces in the Brazil area. They (DoD forces) suffered 80% losses. It is hard to keep the lid on such things, so...

with respect to 1, 3, and 5, this then sets up a scenario that could have the populace at large, witness a celestial fire-fight of significant proportion in the future. By logical extension then, it would serve the interests of the powers that be, to start an acclimatization program of, at least, marginal proportion. Should the cat "not" get out of the bag, the bogus documents can be held up and said to be hoaxed. A nice safety-net, fallback-position, if you will.

In what I have shared herein, I verily believe this to be the current agenda now being played out. Although we are in no eminent danger at this moment, the government have/has, feathered their nest in case all hell breaks loose. And yes, it too, pisses me off to no end!

Again, echoing the words of Cliff, "It all boils down to technology, and not letting anyone gain the Military high-ground by means of the technology gained through the "field exploitation" of such information." This he says, is the official position of the DoD.

It's not hard to understand that Saddam, with such technology, would unleash untold suffering and destruction upon his enemies. So, I can understand - to an extent - their position. Again, with respect to a moral position, Cliff's agenda is wanting the government to simply say they are here. He feels a deep moral obligation to his fellow man, to keep folks from the torment that comes with seeing something which, for some, drives them relentlessly to search for answers which the government already has. For others that have gone through "intensive debriefing," Cliff wants that practice to stop, field personnel being threatened with death, their families, being threatened the same way. From Cliff's perspective, he has a moral obligation to stop such things.

Lastly, from my perspective, I feel like the luckiest person in the world to know Cliff and you [REDACTED] two people who have "perfectly oriented" moral compasses.

Be well my friend
