RE: Military Service Information

Date: 14 April 2001

Number of Pages Including Cover Sheet: 12

Greetings, Steve;

Here is some military service paperwork and cover letter that may be useful for verification of my assignment to the 865th Radar Squadron, Las Vegas Air Force Station, Nevada. This is where my observation of the simultaneous multiple UFO activity occurred and was documented by radar registration.

My field military service began as an Airman 3C and continued upward through Sergeant. I became NCOIC of Administrative Services for the three field assignments I had during my regular military service, serving as NCOIC on the Commander's Staff at each location.

My direction was to begin the Air Force Education and Commissioning Program in 1967. However, the Department of Defense and the U.S. Air Force decided on closing Las Vegas Air Force Station in 1967. Reassignments were initiated and I was reassigned to Mt. Laguna Air Force Station in San Diego County, California. In latter 1967 in was reassigned to the Viet Nam theater and stationed in Thailand - I was there for about a year.

I worked on completing my educational credits during my air force service and after. However, I did not enroll in the Air Force Education and Commissioning Program as originally intended. Instead, I got out of the military and went into business for myself parallel to starting a family and raising my children. My wife did not want to live a military officer's life.

Thank You,

RE: Documentation for Verification Purposes - The Disclosure Project

Dear Steve,

Attached to this cover letter, is documentation that verifies my USAF service and includes the time period from 1965 through early 1967 that places me on assignment with the 865th Radar Squadron, Las Vegas Air Force Station (SAGE) (ADC), Nevada (a.k.a. "Angels Peak"; West/Southwest of the Groom Lake Test Facility). This was my first field assignment with the Air Force. I reported for duty at Las Vegas AFS, in 1965, immediately after graduation from the USAF School of Administration in Amarillo, Texas.

Angels Peak is approximately 50 miles West/Northwest of Nellis Air Force Base, in the steep mountainous terrain on the east side of Mt. Charleston (there is a wonderful ski lodge there, with some great ski-runs on the Charleston Peak mountain sides). Mt Charleston is the second highest mountain peak in the western United States. The squadron headquarters and support facilities were located at the 7,500 ft - 8,000 ft elevation level. Radar operations, including the "domes", were located at the 10,000 foot + elevation level, to the east of headquarters and facilities. The radar coverage was approximately 300-310 degrees, level horizontal reference.

This is the location where, on one early summer morning in 1966, within the approximate time frame of 1:00 AM to 2:00 AM; several on-duty fellow airmen and myself, physically observed some tremendous UFO flight activity in the night time sky to the west and slightly north of Mt. Charleston (west/northwest of the "Angels Peak" radar site location). This direction places the observed UFO 's (six or seven) about due west of the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site (on the north side of the radar site, down on the desert floor); and, slightly west/southwest of the USAF/DoD Groom Lake Test Facility location (a.k.a., Area 51, The Ranch, Dreamland, The Hog Farm, The Pig Farm, etc.).

Papoose Lake (a dry lake) is approximately west/southwest of the Groom Lake Test Facility. Papoose Lake is a research area that is said to be more highly classified than the Groom Lake Test Facility. Angels Peak radar encompassed these areas, as well, constantly monitoring their air space (restricted) and tracking any aerial activities within these restricted-access geographical zones.

The 865th Radar Squadron (SAGE), Las Vegas Air Force Station, Nevada; located atop Angels Peak was a primary operational component of the 26th Air Division, Phoenix Air Defense Sector (PHADS), North American Air Defense Command (NORAD). NORAD later became known as the North American Space and Air Defense Command.

Las Vegas Air Force Station was supported by Nellis Air Force Base, located north of downtown Las Vegas, Nevada. Nellis AFB is known nationally and internationally as a principal pilot training center and aerial gunnery training facility. The Groom Lake Test Facility and the Papoose Lake Facility are both within the protected flight-restricted zone(s) of the Nellis AFB aerial gunnery range. The Groom Lake and Papoose Lake facilities are, however, located far to the north and eastward within this flight-restricted zone; out of and away from the main aerial gunnery range utilized by the pilot training center.

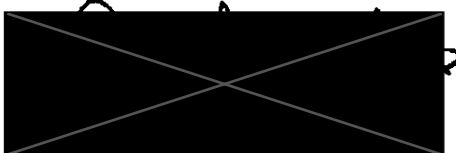

The Groom Lake Test Facility was founded, I think, in the early to mid 1950's, because of need for a secure flight test facility for advanced flying craft, out of general public view (out of view = out of mind) and not easily (if at all) accessed by curiosity seekers. As you already know, I support this action because, (1.) of my former employment with the Lockheed Advanced Development and Engineering division (a.k.a., Skunk Works) of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation; and, (2.) my private sector experience with research and development of advanced technologies in several fields; and (3.) co-operative work in advanced development and engineering necessary to apply and market technologies useful to humankind.

Advanced research, development and engineering requires focus and continuous applied effort to achieve the intended results (or determine that another approach is required). Without a secure setting, productive work in such arenas can be unnecessarily prolonged when there are distractions caused by curiosity seekers and those who might misinterpret such work; or, further, misappropriate innovation.

I do not have any written or recorded media, to provide you, that would document that I have worked on "secret" projects or "black" projects. This type of verification information is not within the normal flow of data exchange. Verification of my employment with the Skunk Works, for instance, is known to be possible - with a legitimate "need to know" and through appropriate protocol - however, this is not an easy process.

My viewpoint is this; as The Disclosure Project develops and expands in scope and gains the authentic support of our nation's leaders, legitimate media and level-headed public, the legitimate need-to-know will also arise. Then, avenues and pathways will open to enable responsible acquisition of verification data for responsible requests and questions. I, for one, will uphold the reason for this Disclosure Project - to speak of our experiences and stick to the facts, to gain the support of the Congress, the White House, military leaders, responsible media reporters and public.

Current Duty: Chief Administrative Clerk. Responsible for the overall administrative program in the Orderly Room which includes: incoming and outgoing distribution, reproduction of special orders and local publications, maintenance of the reference library, operation of the forms distribution center, maintenance and disposition of files and typing of all correspondence and reports for the Orderly Room.

Additional Duties: Alternate Unit Mail Clerk and Alternate Squadron Courier.

FACTS AND SPECIFIC ACHIEVEMENTS: A2C Phillips has produced outstanding work during this reporting period. He was given the job of Chief Clerk over two much more experienced 70230s primarily because of his eagerness to learn, ability to organize and his unlimited growth potential. Amn Phillips is constantly studying the various regulations and manuals that pertain to the numerous tasks he performs. The Non-Series and T-Series Special Orders he cuts are flawless and this in itself is an outstanding feat. When the NCOTC of the Personnel Section went on leave, Amn Phillips volunteered to do his work. Even though these areas were foreign to him, Amn Phillips has done outstanding work whether it be the morning report, finance paper work or overseas processing, etc. Amn Phillips is also an Alternate Squadron Courier and Unit Mail Clerk. His knowledge of the postal directives is commendable and his Mail Room has been rated tops in the recent USAF Postal and IG Inspections. STRENGTHS: Amn Phillips' aggressiveness, positive attitude and unquenchable thirst for knowledge make him an asset to any organization. He is very versatile and extremely intelligent. OTHER COMMENTS: He recently took his 70250 SKT and passed it with an exceptional score of 80%ile. I highly recommend Airman Phillips for promotion to Airman First Class and he should be promoted ahead of his contemporaries. I have discussed the Airman Education and Commissioning Program with Airman Phillips and he is very interested in it. His future potential is unlimited and I highly recommend him for the Airman Education and Commissioning Program.

Airman Phillips is the most dedicated Airman Second Class I know. Considering his total time in the service, his performance of duty is outstanding. I would not hesitate to recommend Airman Phillips for the Air Force Commissioning Program. He is the best Amn Second Class on the Station and should be promoted at the earliest possible time.

SUBJECT: Nomination for the Most Outstanding Airman Award, Phoenix Air Defense Sector

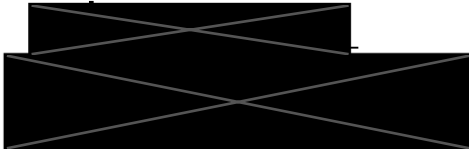

TO: PHADS (PHCCR)

1. Airman Third Class Donald H Phillips, AF19835996, is nominated as the Most Outstanding Airman of the Phoenix Air Defense Sector for the period 1 October 1965 to 31 December 1965.
2. Airman Phillips is assigned primary duty as Forms and Publications Distribution Clerk with the additional duties of Unit Mail Clerk and Squadron Courier.
3. Every job Airman Phillips undertakes is performed in an outstanding manner. Following are Airman Phillips achievements and accomplishments from 1 October 1965 to 31 December 1965.
 - a. A steadier or more consistent worker than Airman Phillips would be hard to find. Since his assignment to this office he has displayed a constant desire to complete his assigned duties as well as provide all assistance possible to all personnel and sections needing it. Just a comment that something needs to be done is all that is needed to start him on the job. He stays with a job until it is completed.
 - b. After a very brief explanation of Forms and Publications Management, Airman Phillips was assigned the responsibility of maintaining the master reference library and ordering and stocking all publications and forms utilized by the Station. This job is second to none in tediousness and it brings him into constant contact with personnel of all ranks.
 - c. With no prodding and the minimum of supervised OJT he proceeded to research all publications and reference material necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of a Forms and Publications Distribution Center. The manner in which he has performed this function is comparable to a 5 level airman with 3 or 4 years experience. His constant display of cheerfulness is amazing considering the nature of his job.
 - d. Regardless of position or rank, A3C or LtCol, Airman Phillips provides the same high level of service.
 - e. On several occasions due to an unexpected workload he has voluntarily remained after duty hours. Many times this was done without the immediate knowledge of his supervisor who would learn of it through conversation with other personnel. This would be done without any expectation of compensatory time off.

f. At no time has he knowingly given erroneous information to anyone. Whenever he is in doubt on a subject he will always attempt to research it and if unable to find an answer he carries the problem to his supervisor for assistance. When he is able to find an answer he does not stop there. He insures there is not another solution and as a double check confirms this with his supervisor.

g. In his capacity as Unit Mail Clerk he is continuing the fine manner in which he accomplishes all of his duties. Never has any forwardable mail been allowed to accumulate. All records are maintained in an excellent condition and the appearance of the mail room is always outstanding. He has spent many extra hours keeping the mail room open after hours in order that our shift workers may pick up their mail.

4. Airman Phillips is one of the most aggressive, congenial, conscientious and thorough airman that I have ever known. He is a perfectionist and every task he undertakes is a masterpiece. He is well read and he is constantly studying and working towards his college degree. His personal conduct and appearance are above reproach and he sets the ultimate example for other personnel to follow. It is with personal pride and confidence that I recommend Airman Third Class Donald H Phillips as the most Outstanding Airman in the Phoenix Air Defense Sector.
