In a brief interview with paranormal reporter Pierre Stahl of
Germany's STERN MAGAZINE, [REDACTED] US
Navy, and head of Intelligence Operations for the United States Space Command, head quartered at Peterson Air Force Base, Colorado Springs, Colorado, admitted that the US Air Force has been 'deliberately' misleading the public for some time about the existence and intelligent control of so-called Unidentified Flying Objects (UFOs).

 among other startling admissions, identified that the Air Force had maintained a 'Duty Cover' operation for Nellis Air Force base, where special flying craft of the United States Military were 'hidden' behind intelligence operations intended to make these advanced so-called 'Warfighter Aircraft' look like Flying Saucers.

Among those named in the deception: Glen Campbell, operator of the 'Area 51 Information Center', and one Michael Linderman, who writes a popular alternative newsletter about UFOs called 'CNI News'. Lewis also identified Radio Show Host Jeff Rense, who he indicated was employed by a small National Security group assigned to Peterson Air Force Base, which operates the 'Orbit 7 Network', a phony Radio Network which was organized to plant stories into the Civilian Broadcast Channels.

When asked why he had decided to publicize these obviously sensitive matters, Captain Lewis cited recent disagreements between himself and General Howell Estes, head of the United States Space Command, over Public Policy Captain Lewis believes these Covert Operations appear to violate, leading to his decision to leave the United States Space Command and return to the United States Navy. Lewis also indicated that the Air Force and the United Space Command were 'failing to disclose' the true nature of actual Flying Disk Spacecraft which have visited Earth during the modern era, and while refusing to admit or deny the existence, indicated that President Clinton may not have been telling the whole truth, when he denied that the United States Department of Defense had captured an alien spacecraft.

 credentials and curriculum vitae are remarkably impressive for so outspoken a critic of the Air Force's policies.

After a lengthy career at Fleet Intelligence Center in the US Navy ADP Section, From January 1978 until June 1983 CAPT Lewis served two consecutive Norfolk, VA tours: first, at Fleet Intelligence Center Europe and Atlantic where he served as Chief of the ADP section supporting production of the Naval Intelligence Processing System; then at United States Commander in Chief Atlantic where he stood up the mission planning center for the Tomahawk Land Attack Missile.

Next [REDACTED] served as Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff for intelligence on the Commander Sixth Fleet staff and supported multiple operations in the Mediterranean littoral. In 1985 he attended the Naval Command and Staff College in Newport, RI, where he earned a master of arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies and another MA in International Relations from Salve Regina College also in Newport, RI. He entered defense attache training in June 1986 followed by an assignment as an Assistant Naval Attache from January 1987 until January 1990 at USDAO Rome, Italy.

From January 1990 until March 1992, [REDACTED] served as Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence and as Space and Electronic Warfare Coordinator for the Commander, Carrier Group Six, embarked in USS Forrestal (CV 59). This operational tour was followed by four years of duty at two Washington, DC area commands; the first being with Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command as acting program manager for the Navy Tactical Command System/Afloat; then at Defense Information Systems Agency as Chief, C4I Engineering Management supporting initial deployment of the Global Command and Control System. From there, CAPT Lewis assumed his present duty assignment in August 1997 and currently serves as the Director of Intelligence for NORAD and USSPACECOM.
