
DATE: 7/5/96 7:47 PM

Re: Destron Fearing, Inc.

Steven:

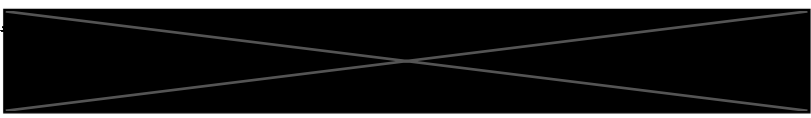

Perhaps you know about this already--There's a company located in Boulder, Colorado called "Destron Fearing, Inc." They hold a series of patents incl. #5,211,129 dated 5/18/93 assigned to Destron Fearing and >>Hughes Aircraft, a division of General Motors<<. They manufacture miniature electronic implants that are injected using a large syringe and needle (sound familiar?). According to their product literature the chips can be programmed with up to 34 billion unique, unalterable ID codes. The patent also includes the injector system which is adjustable for implant insertion depth and the patent says: "the invention may be adapted to a large range of dimensions". This technology is currently being used in farm animals to control herds & flocks where, using a scanner, they can not only locate and identify the animal but even determine its breeding status and much more! The patent further states: "the system involves inserting tiny implants (four-tenths of an inch long and less than one-tenth of an inch in diameter) into animals for their identification, useful in monitoring migratory patterns and FOR OTHER PURPOSES".

It blows my mind this is out in the "white world" now. It tells me this was most likely developed long ago using black budget $$$$. Gosh, I wonder what "For Other Purposes" could mean. (-;

Regards,

File "Abductions & Implants" original

Re: Destron Fearing, Inc.

Thanks for the info; have not seen that particular company, but know that such devices have been around in covert world for decades, and that they can both send and receive information. Moreover, using non-linear and so-called non-lethal technologies, they can access 'mind-stuff' or the subtle body and induce specific and very programmable 'experiences' and abilities. It is unfortunate that the abduction subculture is so resistant to doing real, in-depth and behind the scenes investigative work to 'connect the dots'. Perhaps some time we could convene a private conference to collect data and concepts on these black mind control technologies so that people will finally have a sense of what is possible, and then re-evaluate many of these alleged UFO abductions in that light. Want to spear-head it?....

Steven